

Dear ACPELIA,

I am writing on behalf of EduArt to share our appreciation and full support for the Erasmus+ project "Erasmus = eMpowering + partiCipation of youth in douple (E=MC2)." Being part of this youth exchange program has been an amazing experience for our organization and the young people we work with.

This project has helped us in many ways. It gave us practical tools and methods to better involve young people and inspire them to take part in their communities. By focusing on emotional intelligence, teamwork, and inclusivity, the project has helped us to build stronger and more connected teams, both within EduArt and in our partnerships with other organizations.

The activities, such as the teamwork games, discussions on emotional awareness, and the practical workshops, taught our participants valuable skills. They learned how to speak confidently, solve problems creatively, and understand the importance of working together with others from different backgrounds. These skills will help them not only now but also in their future careers and personal lives.

The cultural exchange was another big highlight. Our participants appreciated learning about the traditions and experiences of others, which has helped them become more open-minded and accepting. It also encouraged them to think about how they can make a positive difference in their own communities.

For EduArt as an organization, the project gave us new ideas and resources that will shape our future programs. We learned effective ways to plan and run activities that connect young people to important topics like participation, diversity, and social inclusion. The chance to collaborate with partners from different countries also strengthened our network and opened doors for future joint projects.

The project's focus on supporting young people with fewer opportunities was especially meaningful. It reminded us of how important it is to make sure everyone has a chance to participate and grow. Seeing these young people gain confidence and skills through the project was inspiring for everyone involved.

We are truly grateful to ACPELIA for leading such a powerful and well-organized initiative. The "E=MC2" project has left a lasting impact on our participants, our organization, and our community. We look forward to working together again on future Erasmus+ programs and continuing to make a positive difference for young people.

Thank you for this unforgettable experience.

Sincerely,
Elena Tasheva Trpenovski
